

Pals, wise stewards of BOM' s stacked subscriptions:

Even if we cannot yet pop the champagne, the warmth of a hot latte is enough to power us into Friday with full energy!

Today is truly a day to make the heart race! The eyes of the world are fixed on the Federal Reserve, and we are standing at a crossroads of wealth. The prospect of a rate cut is like an arrow pulled taut on the bowstring—long prepared to be released.

And this morning' s pre-market NFP data is the final trigger, the spark that sets it all ablaze.

Generates something

At this very time last year, capital markets were in the midst of a full-blown carnival. Fireworks lit the crypto space everywhere. And those who missed it then carried that regret for an entire year.

So what we are speaking of is not cold data, it is the convergence point of a wealth cycle.

Think of it this way, the NFP report is the ignition, the Fed's rate cut is the fuel, and our currency surfing, combined with BOM's stacked subscriptions, is the race car fitted with a nitro booster. Ignite, fuel, thrust—all in one motion. And our role is simply this: to hold the wheel firmly, without hesitation.

Is currency surfing too thrilling? Is BOM subscription too conservative? Don't forget, the art of investing lies in the combination.

Think of the NBA Finals. Relying on one superstar to endlessly play isolation ball rarely carries a team far. The Lakers dynasty was built on the Kobe – Shaq dual core; the Warriors thrived on the teamwork of Curry, Thompson, and Green.

Currency surfing is that fearless superstar, scoring quickly; BOM subscription is the steady defender in the paint, protecting your foundation.

Only with both working together do you get a true championship roster.

Currency surfing demands boldness, BOM subscription requires steady collection, and combined, they form a path to wealth that is both exhilarating and enduring.

A Fed rate cut is like the powerful undercurrent before a tsunami, the market is already gathering force. Today's NFP report is the resounding shot of the starting gun.

So, do not hesitate, do not delay. We must enter this game with excitement, capturing the speed of currency surfing, the stability of BOM subscription, and the timing of the rate-cut cycle.

History has proven time and again, those who dare to seize the convergence of NFP week and the rate-cut cycle never walk away empty-handed!

Remember the old saying: "The market does not reserve seats for the hesitant." Today, what we must do is board decisively and claim our moment.

The wave of wealth is right in front of us. Pals, are you ready to charge with me into this grand capital feast?

Today’ s NFP report is not just a set of numbers. It is a ticket—an "entry pass" to financial freedom!

Do not let hesitation hold back your steps. Do not let the noise of the crowd distract you from recognizing the historic opportunity unfolding before us.

Together, let us face this capital carnival with wisdom and with courage!

And before we step into BOM’ s stacked subscriptions, let us first claim the profit opportunity gifted to us this morning by the NFP report through currency surfing!

Currency surfing short-term profits + BOM stacked subscription

“dual-track model” :

Currency surfing: short-term, high volatility, high adrenaline, explosive profits.

BOM subscription: medium-term stability, locked-in returns, compounded growth.

Investment is not a multiple-choice question, it is a combination.

True wealth wisdom lies in balance and complementarity.

Friday's pre-market NFP data indicates that a September rate cut is now certain. Acumeta's real-time monitoring has identified a reliable trading opportunity and issued a strong forecast prompt:

#Trading preparation begins: Transfer your trading funds into your currency surfing (contract) account and be ready to place your order.

#Please now open your INDEXBIT trading center account, navigate to the currency surfing interface, and, based on your trading capital, prepare to follow the signal prompt and execute the instructed order.

#Do not miss this! Seize the short-term on-chain currency surfing opportunity and capture the profits of NFP week's volatility!

When Jerome Powell stands before Congress and before the world, he will say: “Now it is time to unleash the full force of America’s monetary policy.” These are not idle words, they mark a turning point in an era, the beginning of a new cycle.

Now, I want to borrow his words and say to you: “Now, it is time to unleash your powerful investment strength!”

For the crypto market, the release of the NFP report is like a vital injection into a stagnant game—a surge of adrenaline that changes everything.

This is the “profit of timing.” It does not come from how clever you are, nor from how hard you work. It comes from whether you can seize that fleeting opportunity at the perfect moment granted by providence.

You may ask: “How do we seize this opportunity?”

The answer is simple: we need tools, we need ammunition, we need power!

The currency surfing experience is the stage we have built for you to feel that rush of adrenaline.

Standing here today, my goal is to tell you how to claim your ticket of entry—how to unleash the “power of your tokens”—and secure the "entry funds" to participate in this experience. You have several ways to obtain these "entry funds"

First method: Top-up, this is the most direct approach.

Second method: Unlock your NQT tokens, this is the most “intelligent” approach.

Congratulations, you already hold the “pass” to enter the ball. You don’ t need to spend extra; simply release the tokens you already own, and you will have the funds to participate in the experience.

Third method: Long-term membership, this is the most “forward-looking” approach. Congratulations, this makes you a VIP!

For long-term members, we provide a "Token Support Program", which means you will receive additional tokens, thereby gaining the funds to take part in the "currency surfing" experience.

No barriers—only opportunities!

And I want you to understand this clearly: this experience has no threshold, only opportunity!

Whether your capital is $1k, $3k, or as much as $500k—you are fully qualified to participate!

Wealth always favors the brave. The NFP data has already sounded the bell, Powell’s arrow is drawn to the full, and now is the moment for us to release our courage, release our tokens, and release our passion!

We've covered so much, from NFP data to Fed rate cuts, from BOM subscriptions to currency surfing. And I would wager that right now, some of you are thinking about the most essential question—the question of “how to put your money in the right place.”

Currency surfing is thrilling, and its returns are fast. But how does it differ from what we often call holding crypto spot reserves? And how should one choose?

These two approaches are not opposites, they are complementary. If you don't understand the distinction, you are like someone carrying both a hunting rifle and a fishing net—yet not knowing when to use which.

Today, as we stand on this major day of the NFP release, isn't your heartbeat just a little faster than usual?

*The thrill and profits brought by NFP surfing are only the prelude.

The true performance is in channeling those profits into BOM subscriptions. Why? Because NFP is a flash of flame, while BOM is the furnace that keeps burning.*

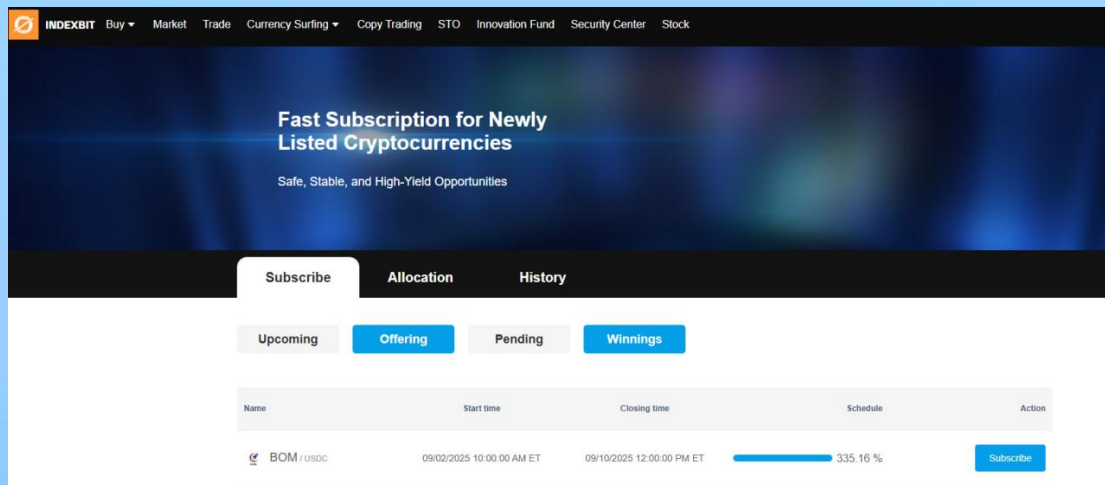

Currency surfing is the accelerator, BOM subscription is the engine of profit.

And time after time, BOM's subscription data has shattered expectations, with returns so high they leave us speechless.

The volatility of NFP already makes our hearts race, but BOM's profits send the pulse straight off the charts.

It is as if you thought you were boarding an ordinary flight—only for BOM to upgrade you to a private jet, carrying you far beyond to the other shore of wealth.

Generates something

According to the live BOM subscription chart, progress has now surpassed 330%, what does this mean?

1. It means the projected listing price of BOM is $1 \times 3.3 = 3.3$ USDC.

In other words, for every portion of your subscribed funds that receives an allotment, your current net profit already exceeds 230%.

How should this be understood?

Suppose you subscribed, through cumulative layered subscriptions, for 500k BOM. At the time of allotment, you were allocated 50k tokens.

That means the unsubscribed portion is $500k - 50k = 450k$. This portion will be fully returned to your account.

And the cost of the 50k allotted tokens?

$50,000 \times 1 = 50,000$ USDC.

As of today, the minimum confirmed listing price is 3.3. With each token costing 1 USDC, what is your net profit?

$50,000 \times 2.3 = 115k$.

Well, your BOM subscription plan, based on today's chart data, already implies a minimum profit of 115k.

And if, over time, the subscription chart rises to 500% or even 800%, will your profits continue to grow? Tell me, what's your answer?

NFP surfing is like an NBA Finals game, hitting the clutch three-pointer in the last 2 minutes, sending the arena into a frenzy...the thrill is indescribable.

But when the game ends, you still have to go home.

BOM subscriptions, by contrast, are like signing a ten-year max contract, not only do you get the highlight moments, you also secure steady annual dividends. One is the instant roar of applause, the other is the long accumulation of honor. Which do you think truly changes a life?

BOM has another trump card—scarcity in the market.

The subscription chart shows us that allotments are limited, like front-row tickets to a concert—wait too long, and they’ re gone.

The scramble in the market has made BOM more than an investment tool, it has become a "statement of identity"

What I want to tell you is this: yes, NFP-day currency surfing excites, it electrifies, but do not mistake it for the destination.

It is only the springboard to BOM, the battlefield where you stockpile ammunition.

The real objective is to aim that ammunition at BOM’ s bullseye.

Because that is the path of 0 risk investment, steady growth, and wealth surpassing every expectation.

Name	Price	Price Change Value	Price Change	Operation
US NASDAQ-100	23,652.44	+19.43	+0.08 %	Details
US Standard & Poor's 500	6,481.50	-20.58	-0.32 %	Details
US Dow Jones Industrial Aver...	45,400.86	-220.43	-0.48 %	Details
US NASDAQ Composite	21,700.39	-7.31	-0.03 %	Details

stock.moreStockTokenizationFeaturesWillBeOpenedLater

Pals, welcome back to my quantitative strategy program!

I want to begin with a phenomenon that seems “contradictory” :
 NFP day is supposed to be the market’s big moment, isn’t it? Rising unemployment, slowing job growth, figures like these should excite the market, strengthen expectations for rate cuts, and push both equities and crypto into a frenzy of gains.
 But in reality, the stock market staged a high-open, low-close—spiking first, then dropping back down—leaving many puzzled. This is the "drama queen" side of financial markets.

A 180-degree reversal. If you focus only on the surface of price swings, you will never grasp the real drama unfolding behind the scenes.

I am not here to complain with you about the market's “contrarian moves.” I am here to lead you, with the forward thinking of quantitative strategy, to analyze this seemingly irrational phenomenon, and to understand this market that appears to be out of control.

What does this seemingly contradictory market behavior tell us? It shows that short-term volatility is not simply the product of raw data, but the interplay of sentiment, capital, and expectations. The NFP report did reinforce rate-cut expectations, but the market was equally worried about another issue: if unemployment rises beyond forecasts, it signals that the risk of economic downturn is also growing.

It's like driving a car, you can floor the accelerator and speed ahead, but if the fuel tank is leaking, would you dare keep racing?

That is why funds surged in the morning, only to retreat in the afternoon, locking in profits while waiting to see the Fed's next move.

In essence, the market went through a cycle of “excitement first, calm later.” And it reminds us of a crucial truth: relying solely on data and headlines will not yield outsized gains—you must have quantitative strategy and steady positioning.

In this afternoon’s program, my goal is not merely to explain the swings in market sentiment, but to use a quantitative lens to identify that “stable baseline return.”

We must see through the market’s “drama queen face” and grasp the logic behind it.

True mastery is not about chasing every candlestick on the chart, but about discerning clarity in the chaos and locking in profits amid the turbulence.

So why did the stock market open high and close low?

First reason: expectations fulfilled, good news exhausted.

You know, in financial markets expectations matter more than

Generates something
"facts"

Before the NFP release, what was the prevailing expectation? A rate cut. Whether from Fed officials' remarks or from economic indicators, everything reinforced this expectation. And smart money had already entered and positioned well in advance.

So when the NFP data—the “good news”—finally materialized, the market did not keep rising. Instead, those who had positioned early took profits and exited, sending prices lower.

That is the essence of "buy the rumor, sell the news."

Second reason: short-term arbitrage triggering a chain reaction.

In the crypto market, there are many funds engaged in “currency surfing arbitrage.”

Their goal is not to hold crypto for the long term, but to seize short-term volatility and wage a kind of “lightning war.”

When the NFP data is released and the market jumps instantly, these funds rush in—then, upon hitting a preset profit target, exit just as quickly.

Their long positions are closed, pushing prices lower, which in turn triggers stop-loss orders, leading to even heavier selling pressure.

It is like a row of dominoes: the NFP report is the hand that topples the first tile, and every subsequent chain reaction is the market's own force at work.

Third reason: concern over the future of the economy.

You might say: “Isn't weak NFP data a good thing? The Fed will cut rates!”

Yes, for us that is good news.

But it also reveals that the U.S. labor market may be in worse shape than many imagined.

It is like reading a doctor's diagnosis. The doctor tells you that you have an illness, but one that can be cured with medication. You breathe a sigh of relief.

Yet at the same time, you feel worried, because an illness is still an illness.

The NFP report is that “diagnostic report.” It tells us the job market may be weaker than expected.

This sparks investor concern about the future of the economy, leading many in the short term to exit and wait on the sidelines.

Such concern does not change the larger trend toward rate cuts, but in the short term, it hangs over the market like a dark cloud, creating downward volatility.

In fact, half a month ago I already gave a warning: don’t assume that once the Fed cuts rates, the stock market will simply celebrate and march straight upward.

The logic of stock market rallies depends far more on whether the economic fundamentals are solid and whether corporate earnings are backed by real cash flow, not on whether the central bank sprinkles candy and everyone can keep partying.

That is why I made a bold assertion: from late August to the end of September, caution in trading is essential—don't let the surface-level sweetness cloud your judgment. Looking at today, would you say that call was wrong?

But crypto? Their logic is entirely different.

To put it plainly: the stock market is about overall health, while crypto is about how full the wallet is.

The rise and fall of the stock market hinges on underlying strength, while the rise and fall of the crypto market hinges on the flow of capital.

When the Fed cuts rates, when Canada cuts rates, when central banks around the world begin “flooding the market” together, all that money needs an outlet. These hot money flows surge like a flood, and the first place they rush into is crypto.

Why? Because here the market is flexible, fast, with few barriers, running 24/7, making it even easier than equities to realize profits.

The crypto market is like a safe harbor for capital. At the slightest ripple in traditional markets, money flocks here like birds in flight.

Look back at 2020, when the pandemic broke out, the Fed slashed rates repeatedly, equities plunged, yet Bitcoin doubled again and again. Stocks respond to health; crypto responds to capital.

Now the global wave of rate cuts sends a clear signal: liquidity is about to be unleashed!

It's like holding your breath and suddenly exhaling—capital bursts forth in a torrent.

At such moments, the stock market may falter amid concerns of economic recession.

So how should we position ourselves next? The answer is actually quite simple: in the stock market, stay vigilant, don't rush blindly into trades. The main theme through the end of November is defense and counterattack.

Stocks and crypto are two entirely different investment tracks. They follow different logics and are driven by different forces.

And in the crypto market, however, you must seize the opportunity and embrace liquidity. For our community in particular, "currency surfing" and BOM subscriptions are the most direct tools: the former helps you earn quick profits from volatility, while the latter helps you turn fast money into steady money. It's like surfing during the day and depositing at the bank at night—walking on two legs is always more stable.

So let us together focus our attention on the scale of global capital being released.

Let us seize together this once-in-a-blue-moon wealth opportunity brought by the rate-cut cycle!

How does Acumeta ensure the stability of currency surfing? Many of you in the past 2 days have already felt that rush—that moment when you stare at the screen, watching the curve jump within milliseconds, and our quantitative system makes its “cut,” seizing the spread before anyone else can react. In that instant, didn’t your heartbeat quicken, your blood surge?

That exhilaration cannot be understood by bystanders, only those who participate firsthand can truly know it.

Acumeta’s quantitative system does not rely on luck, nor on gambling, but on top-tier technology + calm logic + advanced pattern recognition.

In financial markets, speed is our lifeline! Acumeta’s world-class quantitative system can analyze market data and execute trades within milliseconds. On high-volatility days like an NFP release, it operates like a  “Flash” —executing every move with a speed no human could ever match.

Discipline is the guarantee of victory!

In trading, our greatest enemy is not the market—it is ourselves.

Our greed, our fear, our hesitation—these are what drive us to make poor decisions. And Acumeta's quantitative system, however, has no emotions, no greed, no fear. It follows only one principle: discipline!

It adheres to our preset strategies, entering and exiting at the most precise price points. It does not hesitate because of market swings, nor does it alter its course under the sway of emotion.

Strategy is our soul!

The essence of “currency surfing” lies in the "spread-trading mindset" And Acumeta's quantitative system is the "brain" that takes this mindset to its ultimate expression.

Through complex algorithms, it analyzes every layer of market data—trading volumes, price fluctuations, market sentiment, and more.

From this analysis, it identifies the most promising “spread opportunities” and issues us trading signals.

It is like a top detective. He does not solve cases by instinct, but by rigorous analysis of every clue. He lays out all the evidence, studies it in detail, and from the smallest signs uncovers the truth.

We have just experienced an adrenaline-pumping NFP day. We saw the frenzy of the market and felt the power and charm of currency surfing.

Some of you have already taken the profits accumulated over the past 2 days and steadily layered them into BOM token subscriptions.

While others enjoy the leisure of the weekend, relaxing and unwinding, our Acumeta quantitative system continues to work tirelessly. It is like a scout that never rests, monitoring every subtle movement in the crypto market through Friday night and across the entire weekend.

It is searching for that "golden opportunity" that can bring us super profits. It is waiting for the perfect moment to deliver a reliable trading signal.

Stay in touch with me or my assistant, and seize the chance to elevate your trading gains!

And remember: in the world of crypto, every minute may be an opportunity, and every second could mark a turning point.

While many are still savoring the thrill of NFP day, BOM subscriptions are entering a weekend surge of activity!

Because in the crypto market, weekends are often when ""the ""whales"" are most active.""

Those with vast capital, the top-tier institutional players, use weekends to make "big moves" known only to themselves.

And through our monitoring of BOM' s subscription progress chart, we are already seeing the "traces" of these "big moves"

The scramble in the market is fiercer than we imagined. The subscription progress bar is more astonishing than we expected. All of this tells us one thing: BOM subscription profits are exceeding everyone' s expectations!

So if you have earned profits through "currency surfing," then do not hesitate—channel them straight into BOM subscriptions.

The scramble for BOM follows the same logic—it's not that you are being passively diluted, but that your stake is appreciating in value through the market's competition.

Let's look at the journey of Bitcoin. Back then, 10k BTC could buy two pizzas. Today, that same Bitcoin could buy a mansion in the US.

Do you think the “wealth share” of early holders was diluted? On the surface, yes, the mining rewards were halved, allocations grew smaller, and early stakes appeared to be diluted by new participants.

But what was the result? Because of the constant inflow of new capital and the ever-expanding global consensus, the wealth of early holders was amplified exponentially.

Dilution is not a loss—it is an amplifier. And in the wealth story of BOM subscriptions, the blockchain project in aerospace management carries intrinsic scarcity. It is bound to ignite a crypto frenzy and a concentration of capital. I expect that after the weekend, the subscription progress bar may surge past 500%, let us witness it together!

From currency surfing on NFP day to the boundless possibilities of the weekend, I must say this—congratulations to all of you here! Because you are not just watching others celebrate, you are the ones who chose to step onto the surfboard. You joined the trial run, felt the rhythm of the market, and captured those fleeting moments of profit.

It is like hunting. A hunter does not stare blankly at the forest, he holds his breath in the quietest moment, waiting for the deer to appear, and then—strikes with precision! Acumeta's quantitative system is your rifle. All you need to do is remain focused and calm during the right window of time, wait for that one signal, and seize it. Do so, and while others are still sipping coffee in a daze, you will already have pocketed your profits.

Subscribing to BOM tokens is like signing up for a gym membership—you sign, and instantly, you hold a ticket to the arena.

The key is not that one-minute action, but whether you can compound your profits and keep your capital in motion

Ladies and gentlemen:

“Layered subscriptions of BOM” are the key to wealth growth!

Stacking BOM subscriptions is like slipping a bill into your pocket every single day. Over time, you will naturally see your wealth snowball larger and larger.

All you need to do is focus on the "subscription chart", on the profit space it opens for you. I want you to see currency surfing and BOM subscriptions as a perfect one-two punch: one helps you quickly accumulate the “seeds,” the other plants those seeds in the most fertile soil.

And let me give you a major preview—next week I will unveil a stunning wealth revaluation plan! It will align with the Fed’s rate-cut cycle, locked into the period of [September 9 to October 9], a month in which miracles on-chain are set to unfold.

I promise, this is a program you will not want to miss. Just like the Super Bowl, you don’t walk away to wash dishes in the middle of it!

To close, I leave you with 3 takeaways:

1. Don't miss the signals, don't miss the wave.
2. Compounding is the key—only then can the snowball keep rolling bigger.
3. Stay tuned—next week, the Wealth Explosion Plan will be revealed!

You're either on the bus, or watching it pass you by. Turn interest into profit, turn surfing into wealth. Enjoy your weekend—and keep tuning in next week!

