

Happy Thursday, my true MPG victors —you are the ones standing at the very front of this year’ s on-chain wealth surge.

I want to speak to you in the most direct and candid way: we are standing at a golden moment where two major events converge.

One comes from the world of traditional finance, and the other from the new on-chain world. And you, you are standing precisely at the intersection of these 2 worlds.

This is not coincidence, it is your choice, and even more, your foresight.

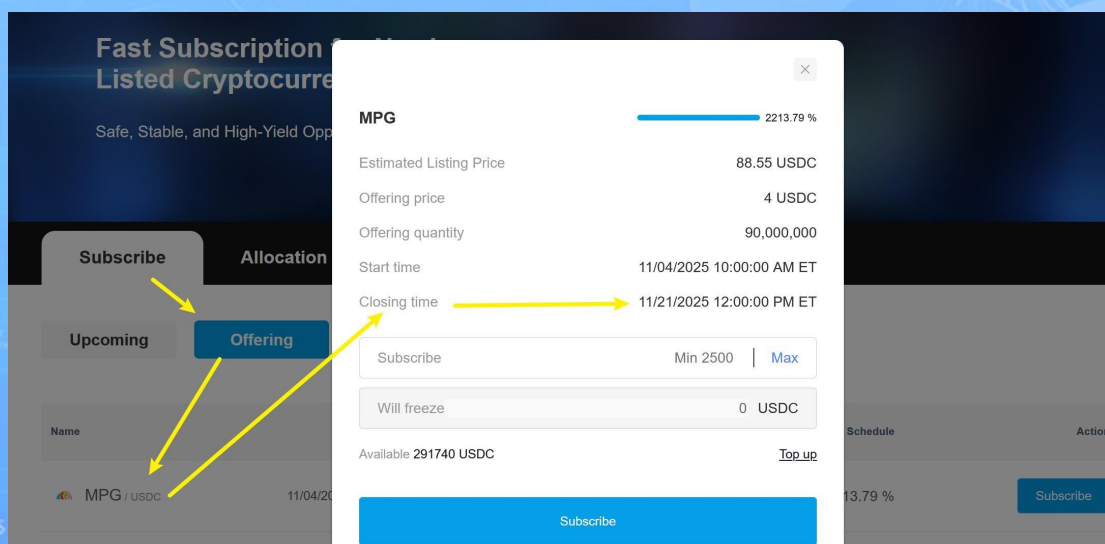

In today's global capital markets, 48 hours can send entire indices swinging back and forth; 48 minutes can make a billion dollars disappear —or be created.

So you can imagine what 48 days of delayed employment data represents.

And today, that long-delayed September non-farm payroll report is finally about to be released.

It's exactly the kind of scenario Wall Street fears most — the market has been walking blind, and suddenly the lights come on.

You need to understand that this isn't just another data release, it will shape: the Fed's reading of inflation whether a rate cut happens in December, the overall direction of risk assets,

whether equities remain under pressure,
whether crypto enters a new wave of volatility, and whether global safe-haven capital begins to move.

In other words — this non-farm payroll print is the blade that will cut open the direction of global markets.

But the real focus isn't the data itself, it's the fact that it may reverse the market's expectations for a December rate cut.

And to all my winning members:

there is no need for tension, worry, waiting, or second-guessing — because you are competing for the MPG new-token subscription.

You are operating inside a profit structure that does not depend on macro trends, the Federal Reserve, market sentiment, data releases, or interest rates.

And now — we have officially entered the final 24-hour countdown for MPG subscriptions. The position you are standing in is outside the storm, and firmly inside certainty.

You must have noticed today 's MPG data: the subscription progress has now surged past 2200%. What does that truly mean?

Allow me to be direct —it' s madness, it' s a frenzy, it' s capital flooding in, it' s on-chain buying at full speed, it' s a lifeboat for money fleeing panic.

The more chaotic the market becomes, the more valuable certainty is. And MPG happens to be the most relentlessly pursued certainty-asset on the blockchain this year.

The pace of MPG ' s subscription has been astonishing, fast, aggressive, and impossible to ignore. It has given us tremendous "subscription-progress gains", but it has also pushed us toward a far more urgent challenge:

the serious, passive dilution risk.

This isn' t speculation, it' s math—a 2200% progress reading means 22x the participation volume.

What once would have been a full share of the metaphorical "cake" must now be divided into 22 slices.

This is dilution,
this is passivity,
this is, quite literally, the "fortunate dilemma of the subscription era"

The more you desire MPG, the more you will feel the weight of dilution.

The more you seek a larger allocation, the more you risk slipping into passivity.

And in these final 24 hours, ask yourself:

How much new capital will flood in?

How many participants will rush the gates?

How many will execute last-minute deposits?

How many institutions will arrive with one decisive, overwhelming lock-in?

These are forces you cannot control.

You cannot impede them.

You cannot out-run dilution in a subscription model of this magnitude.

So how does one secure more shares of MPG? Not through subscription alone.

A simple subscription can no longer protect you. A subscription alone cannot defend against dilution.

When participation accelerates at a hundred-fold pace, when capital surges without restraint, when dilution compounds with every passing hour, and when competition becomes a battle of scale rather than intention—what you need is no longer mere "participation," but the only instrument capable of neutralizing dilution.

It is the MPG strategic allocation —the one path that guarantees a 100% confirmed allotment!

The market may offer everyone the same opportunity to participate, but it has never promised everyone the same share.

Subscribing to MPG is your ticket in.

Securing MPG allocations is your strength.

And as subscription dilution intensifies, only strategic allocation can shift you from being "passive" to truly "in control"

Because: strategic allocation = a fixed share, not dilution.

Strategic allocation = priority, not waiting in line.

Strategic allocation = securing supply, not waiting for leftovers.

Strategic allocation = locking in future profits, not living at the mercy of market tides.

Especially now —as MPG enters the final 24 hours, the true "frenzy zone"

You must understand:

the last 24 hours are when the subscription curve explodes.

And when the dilution curve becomes its most dangerous. Everyone who spent this entire month trying to lock in their subscription...

If they end up without a strategic allocation, they will watch their share diluted down to 2%... 0.5%... even 0.01% on the final day.

You must understand:

Strategic allocation is the last hope.

It is the only path to overturn the odds.

It is the sole weapon capable of fighting dilution.

Dear friends of the Winners Legion,

"Hate" has 4 letters — but so does "love."

"Foe" has 3 letters — and so does "pal."

"Lies" has 4 letters — and "truth" has 5, but the choice is still yours.

"Failure" has 7 letters — and so does "success."

"Cry" has three letters — but so does "joy."

"Negative" has 8 letters — and "positive" has 8 as well.

You always have a choice, so choose the better side.

I don't know whether everything we do in life ultimately matters.

But I'm certain of one thing: what matters most is the people we choose to walk the journey of our lives with — and the indelible marks they leave on our hearts.

I was reading an article recently in which one character asked,

“What matters more — the journey or the destination?”

And another replied,

“What matters is the company you keep along the way.”

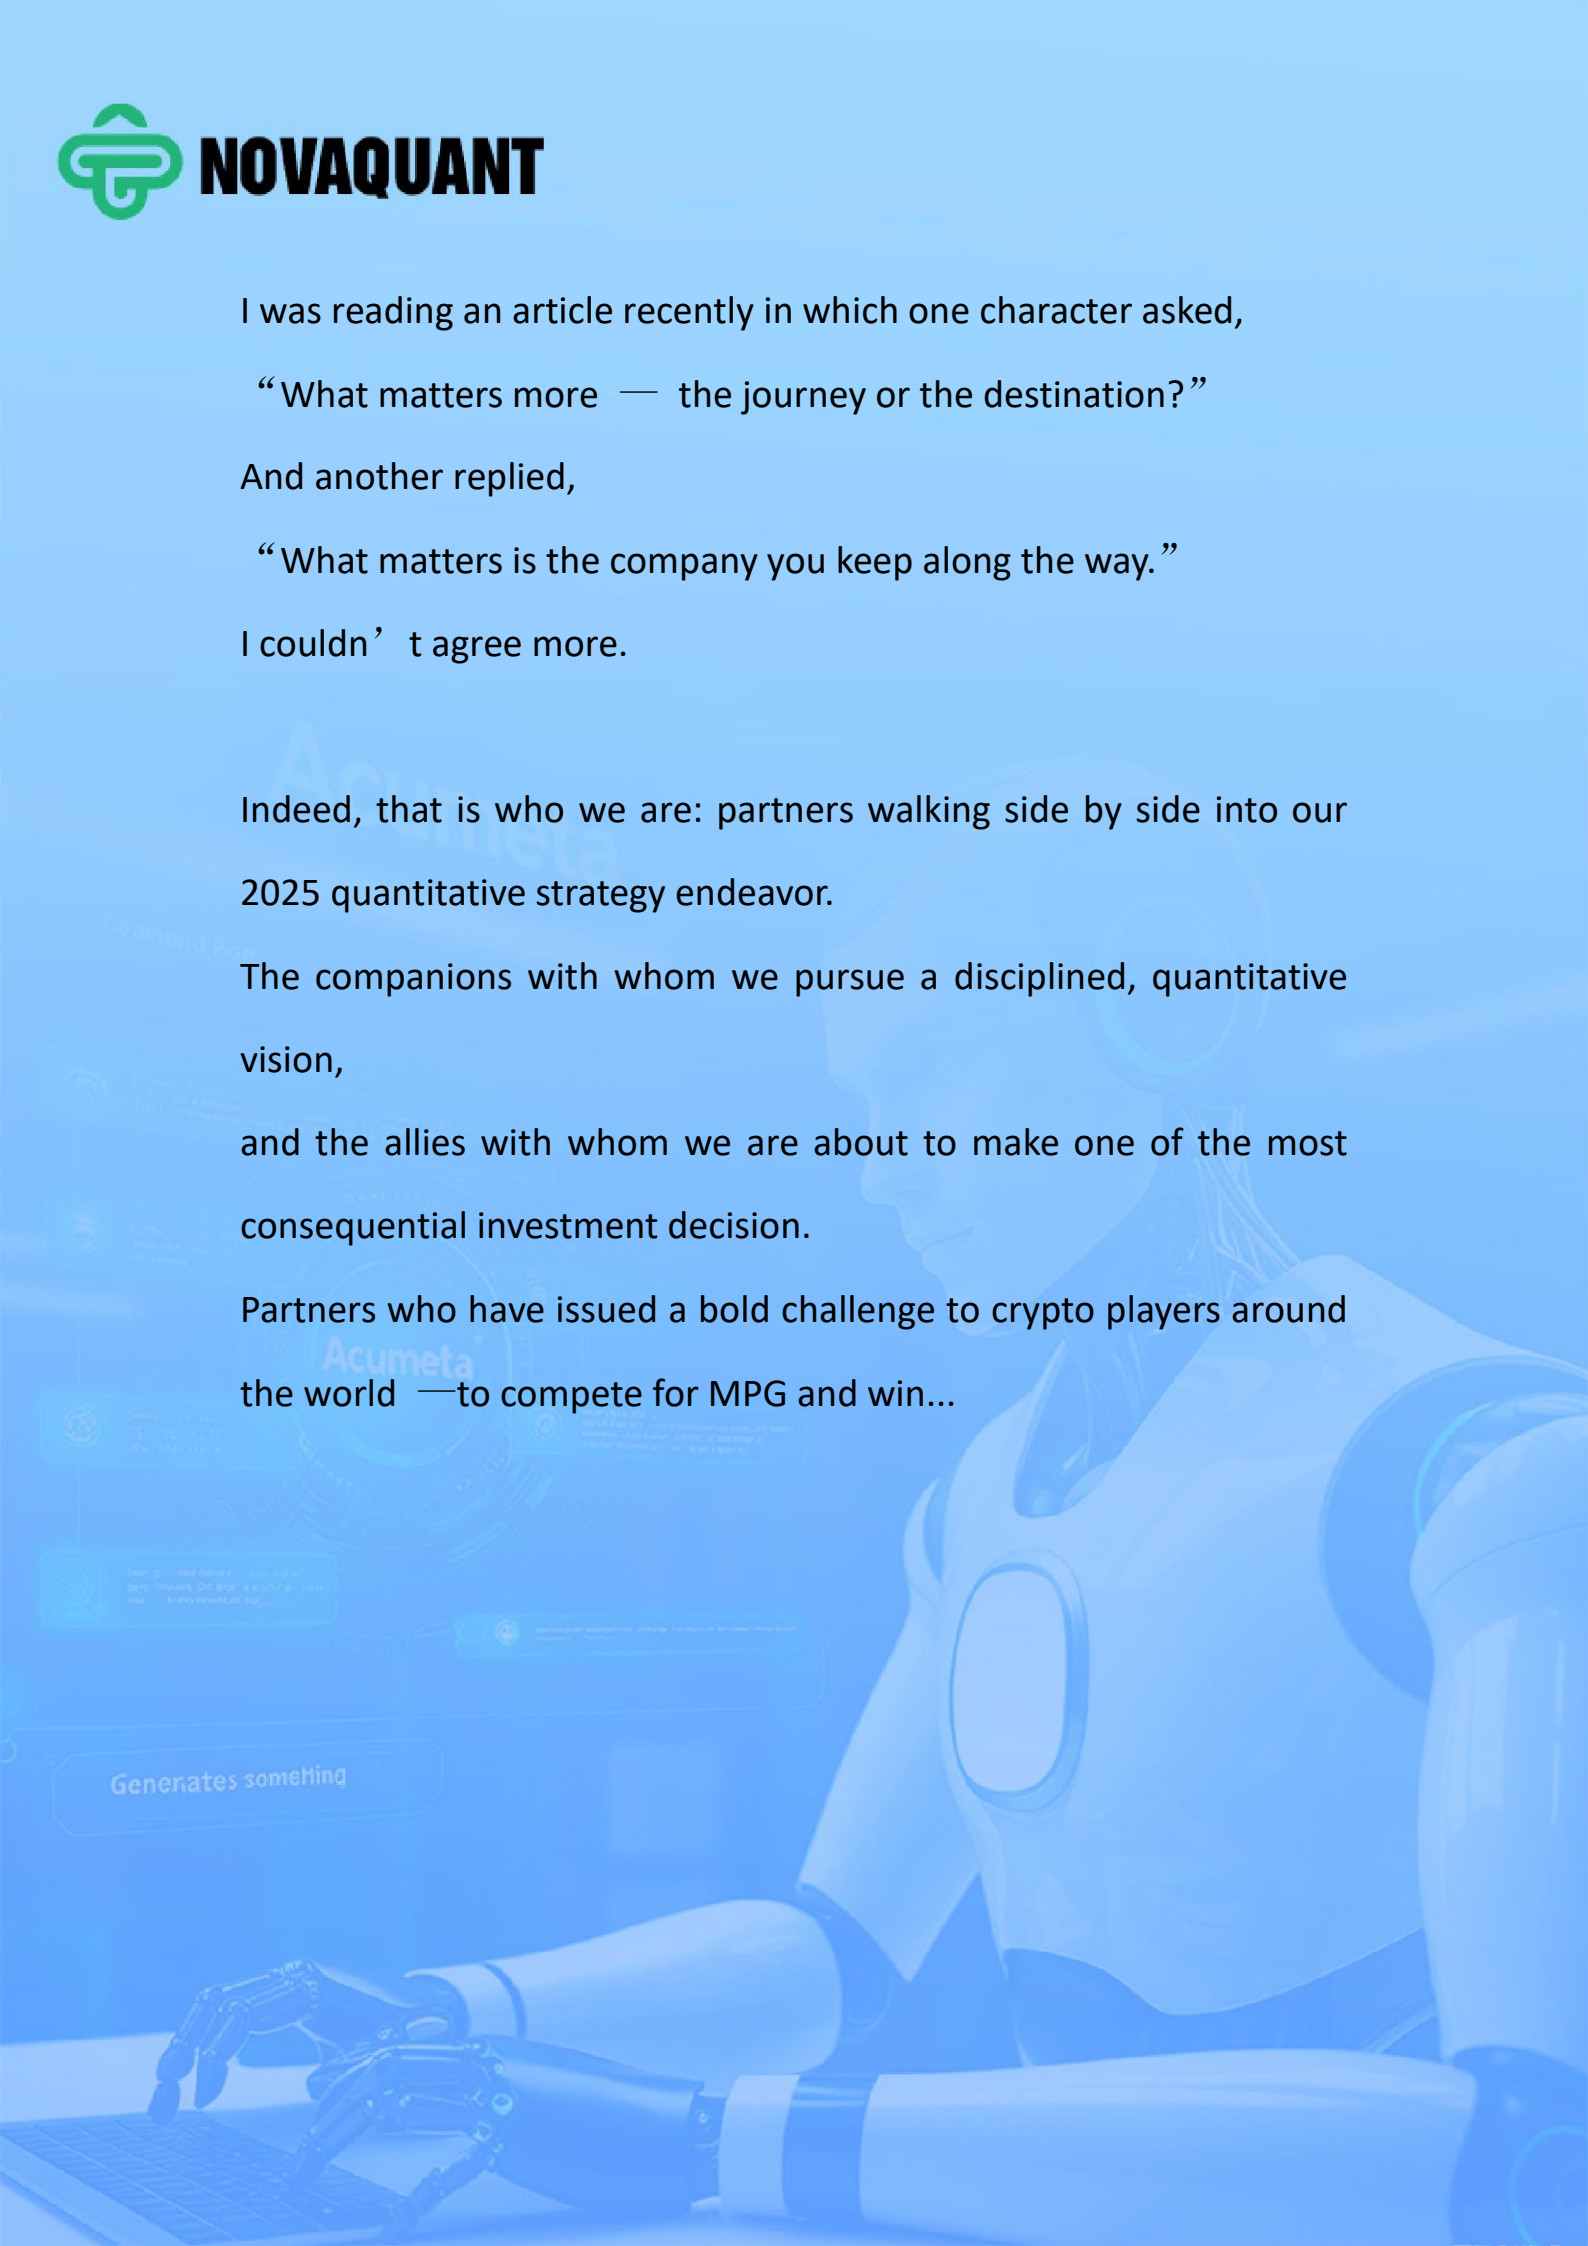

I couldn’ t agree more.

Indeed, that is who we are: partners walking side by side into our 2025 quantitative strategy endeavor.

The companions with whom we pursue a disciplined, quantitative vision, and the allies with whom we are about to make one of the most consequential investment decision.

Partners who have issued a bold challenge to crypto players around the world —to compete for MPG and win...

What is a dream?

A dream is opening life's own Pandora's box, unlocking a treasure chest, beginning a journey of love!

Now, let us open the 2 essential MPG subscription progress indicators:

From the public subscription progress bar, we can see that the public portion is on track to be completed on November 21. This means the global competition for the 90M public-subscription MPG tokens, the qualification race, will officially come to an end on that day.

This data will be sealed by me at the final moment, because it represents MPG's future listing price, the thermometer of future profits, and the key indicator that tells us what kind of return we may receive from the MPG tokens we successfully secure.

It's a fortunate piece of data, and a meaningful marker of investment success along our journey.

Look at it now, already soaring past 2300%, its rapid ascent is like watching a satellite rise across the night sky, pulling our imagination toward the wider universe.

And the rise of MPG is doing the same: guiding every participant in this subscription rush toward a shared goal—to capture more than 23x in extraordinary returns, as long as we secure enough allocated MPG shares.

The 2nd golden key is now unlocking this thrilling, adrenaline-charged MPG allocation race.

So what insights can we draw from the current allocation progress?

As the chart shows, today's verification progress for MPG has steadily climbed to 80%, meaning that funding for 24M tokens has already been secured.

And remember, this entire portion represents 100% guaranteed allocations. if you secure it, you earn from it.

Even though you've already completed your subscription form, is the preparation of your on-chain funds holding up your verification process?

I understand deeply, moving assets from traditional channels into the on-chain world takes not only courage, it takes wisdom.

The America of the future will not simply use crypto, it will become the crypto capital of the world.

It will become the largest sovereign holder of Bitcoin.

Our on-chain asset base will once again lead a historic shift in how wealth is transferred and rebuilt.

What we are doing now is a commitment to the future, and one of the greatest financial lessons we can leave for the next generation.

Don't let MPG slip into someone else's hands.

Don't let your dream end in regret.

Now is the moment to act with courage, in these final 24 hours, just like a Game 7 in the NBA Finals, this is the decisive turning point to win the last 20%!

Just imagine, once you secure 10k MPG through the 1st golden key —the [Key Quota • Green Channel Lock-In] subscription program, what would your return look like? The answer is simple:

$$10000 \times 92 = 920000 \text{ USDC}$$

Well, it's becoming increasingly clear that MPG is on track to list at over 92 USDC.

And what if you secure 100k of guaranteed MPG tokens through the allocation? What would your return be then?

The answer:

$$100000 \times 92 = 9.2\text{M USDC}$$

And if you complete both — the Key-Lock Green Channel subscription + allocation, then your combined return becomes:

$$920000 + 9200000 = 10.12\text{M USDC}$$

#Yes, your net worth can surge the very first day MPG goes live, giving you a level of wealth expansion that is entirely certain.

And what drives this explosive growth?

It comes from the $10 billion worth of on-chain capital from global crypto participants all racing toward the same opportunity.

Isn't this exactly the kind of pathway that leads you toward becoming a high-net-worth individual?

#And isn't the kind of high-quality retirement you dream of, a life of comfort, dignity, and real choice, ultimately built on this kind of accelerated wealth growth?

Your family's reputation, and the graceful story of your emerging modern aristocracy, begins a new chapter here!

The window for participating in the MPG allocation is narrowing by the hour, and the listing date is drawing closer. And as I mentioned yesterday in our discussion about the financing and lending plan, we have arrived at a crucial moment —a moment where leverage can help us create something remarkable.

#You are, without question, the embodiment of luck+strength, one of the courageous few chosen to be rewarded by MPG.

#In the American cultural code, qualities like courage, integrity, sincerity, and the refusal to surrender or give up are not just ideals, they are becoming the very force that drives your actions. They are what empower you to give everything you have in order to win the MPG allocation.

Thanksgiving 2025 is getting closer!

And the MPG strategic allocation arena is like a marathon, some lead, some fall behind, but every step matters.

The allocation shares that have already been taken have become the victories and celebrations of those ahead.

But the remaining opportunities now open the door for the true comeback players —the ones who rise against all odds.

This is the stage for the super winners!

Right now, verification is your only ticket to glory —the faster you act, the sooner you secure success.

Everyone who completes verification first will become one of the brightest stars in this unfolding wealth story, writing a heroic chapter of their own.

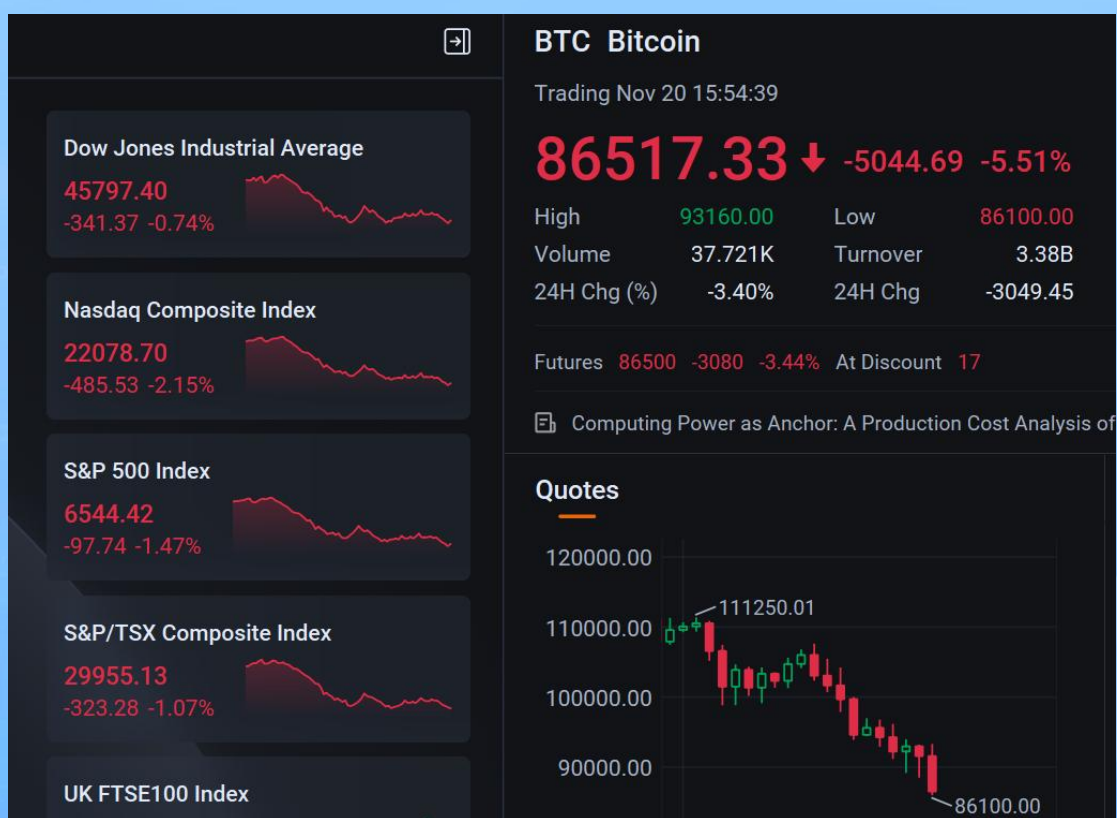

As 2025 draws to a close, every effort you' ve made and every fight you' ve taken on this year deserves to be remembered.

And every step you take from here will lay the foundation for an even more brilliant 2026.

The MPG allocation is not just an investment opportunity, it is a defining moment for personal breakthrough.

Take action this Thursday, I believe you will be unstoppable!

See you then!

Happy Thursday, MPG winners.

If you looked at that plunging red line in the market this afternoon and found yourself quietly thinking, "Thank goodness I'm not on that sinking ship," then you are exactly the group I want to congratulate personally.

Because this crash wasn't a market disaster, it was the perfect piece of "supporting evidence" for the choice you made.

It confirmed, unmistakably and without debate:

Your direction is right.

Your choice is wise.

Your position is on the correct track.

Today's decline didn't hit you, instead, it strengthened your conviction to hold onto MPG, the safest, most reliable, and most cycle-resilient wealth path available today.

That long-delayed "bomb" finally dropped — the September non-farm payrolls came in far stronger than expected.

A report that should have been released more than 40 days ago was postponed by the government shutdown, and now, arriving all at once, it became the "last straw" weighing down the market.

And here's what you saw:

stock market plunged,
crypto crashing intraday,
rate-cut expectations reversing instantly,
investor confidence freezing on the spot,
trapped positions and liquidations flooding the tape, asset prices falling like autumn leaves.

This isn't a "small dip," this is a structural downturn.

But did you notice something?

While global markets were getting soaked in a downpour, we were standing on a completely different path — calm, steady, warm, and even quietly joyful: the MPG new-token subscription.

Many assume that the joy of investing is just about "going up, making money, and doubling returns."

But that's only the surface-level pleasure. Those who come from enduring wealth, the real old-money families, the real wealth players, understand a deeper truth: the greatest pleasure in investing comes from choosing a path where you can advance when you want to, retreat when you need to, and never be ruled by fear.

And that is precisely where you stand today—in MPG. You're on the most certain wealth path on-chain.

You're inside a structured return system that short-term price swings simply cannot shake.

This is what a moat looks like.

A moat doesn't make you the fastest to profit, it makes sure you're never forced to lose.

A moat doesn't hype you up, it gives you peace of mind.

A moat doesn't make you anxious after entering, it lets you sit steadily while others panic.

Thursday's plunge is the strongest proof of your moat: your position in MPG pulled you out of the market's panic and placed you squarely in the winner' s seat.

We need to shift our focus back to what matters most right now — the strategic allocation, entering its final sprint with less than 24 hours left!

My friends, do you truly understand the stage MPG has reached?

This is no longer the ordinary subscription phase, we are now in the most scarce, most intense, and most decisive moment in MPG' s history: "the strategic allocation battle stage"

Because after today' s market plunge, a massive wave of capital will rush toward assets with true certainty.

And MPG is the most certain asset on the entire blockchain.

This means: capital inflows will accelerate sharply on the final day, dilution will surge, subscription shares will be fractured into smaller and smaller pieces ordinary subscribers will become passive, those without strategic allocation will lose their advantage, large players will seize the chance to grab more shares, and strategic allocation will become "the only path to a true comeback"

I' m not trying to scare you, this is simply the inevitable outcome of structure, supply – demand dynamics, and dilution logic working together.

If you rely on subscription alone, here' s what you may end up seeing:

the multiplier goes up,

MPG explodes in popularity,

the market cap surges, yet the amount you actually receive is so tiny it makes you want to scream.

Why? Because you' ve been diluted.

The closer we get to the final 24 hours, the more extreme that dilution becomes.

This is why we keep emphasizing:

Generates something

Strategic allocation is the only path to a true comeback.

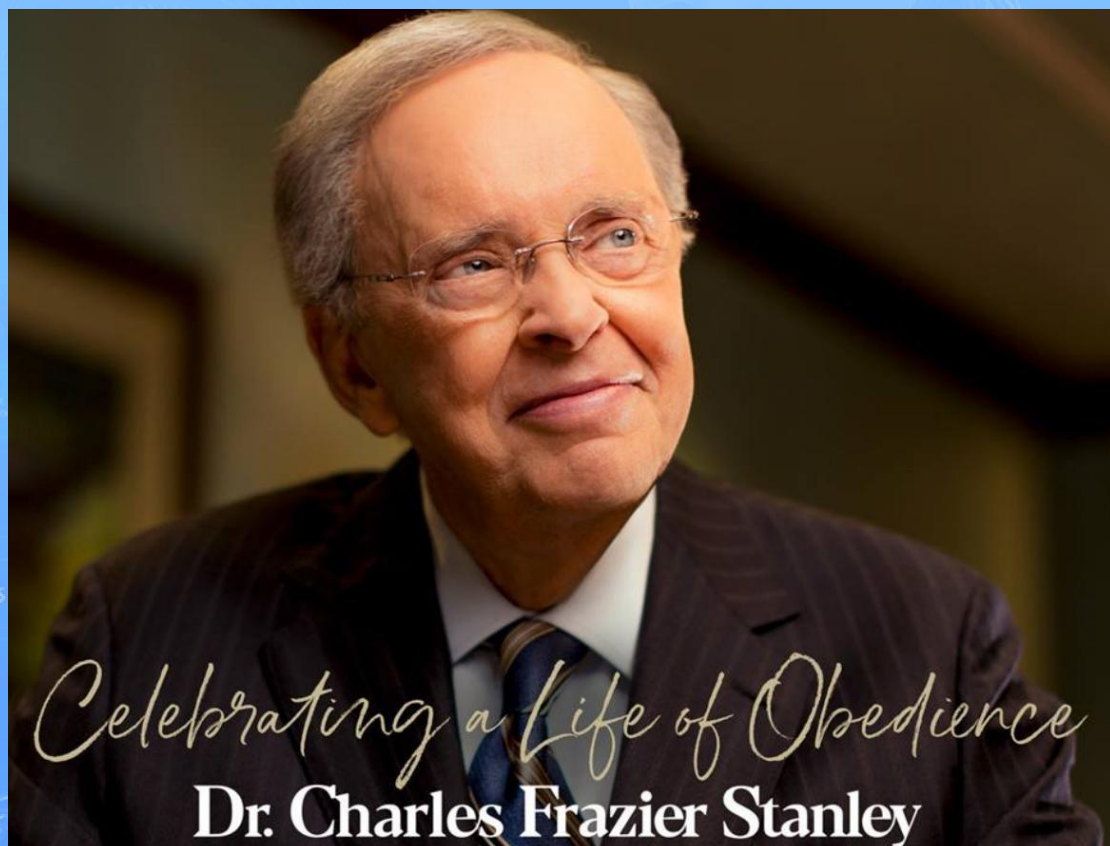

It is the dividing line between the big winners and the ordinary participants.

It is the one weapon that determines how much MPG you can actually secure.

Right now, you are standing at the threshold. Less than 24 hours remain. This is a battle of survival.

In these final hours, the difference will be decided —whether you become a regular winner, or an absolute winner.

May you grasp the true essence of the MPG strategic allocation, and in a world shaken by a market crash, complete your comeback.

I recall a deeply respected pastor sharing in a public address:

“I have stood at the bedside of thousands of people as they took their final breath. And what people say at the end of their lives carries extraordinary weight; they do not waste their last moments. No one, lying on their deathbed, ever says, ‘Pastor, bring me my trophies, I want to see them one last time.’

No one asks, ‘Bring me my college diploma, I want to look at it again.’

When a person knows their time is short, the things they want beside them are not objects, not awards, not achievements. What they long for are the people they love.

In the end, we all come to understand that the true essence of life is love — emotion, connection, relationship.

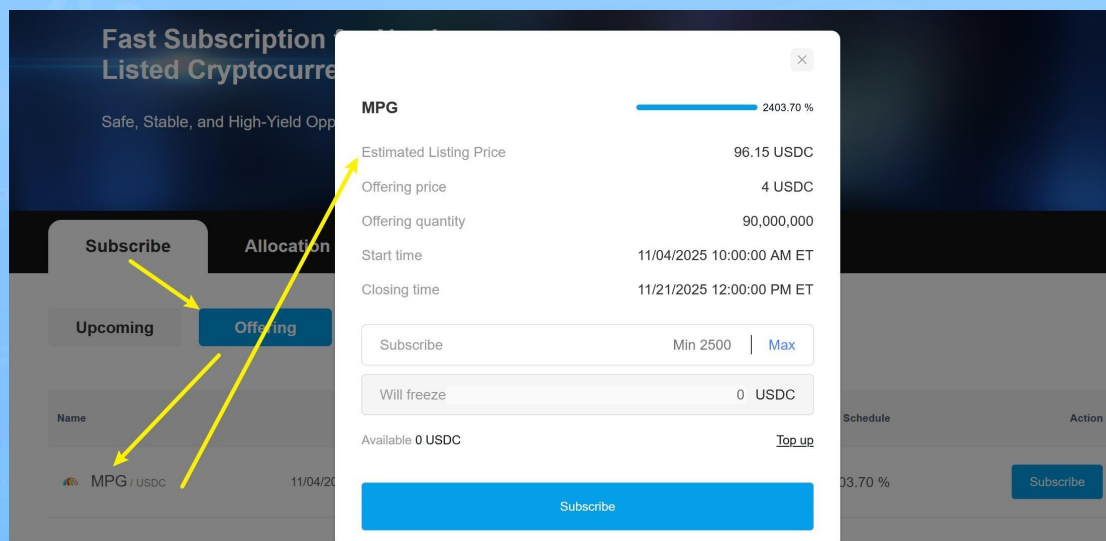

I only hope you can realize this earlier in your journey. Life’s meaning has nothing to do with achievements, reputation, or wealth. It is not defined by the goals you set or the milestones you hope to reach, meaningful as they may be, but without love, I am something Generates nothing.

Without love, I am nothing.

I am but a resounding gong, a clashing cymbal. Without love, I am nothing.”

And this is what I want every member of our Quantitative Winners Legion to hear, as we move toward a hopeful and promising 2026!

Yes, and that means participating in the MPG strategic allocation.

It is a crucial golden key, the key that opens the MPG wealth gateway.

You’ve already seen what happens when 23 people fight over 1 cake, the competition alone pushes the price up 23x. And if you want a meaningful share of that cake, you must come through a different channel.

#And that channel is the MPG strategic allocation, not the oversaturated public subscription.

#According to the latest chart, the MPG strategic allocation has now surpassed 85%. This means more than 25.5M MPG have already been secured by participants whose funds have successfully passed verification.

And unlike the public subscription, they don't need to wait for any allocation announcement —their shares are already confirmed.

Why? Because strategic allocation is based on verification and subscription, once your funds are verified, your allocation is locked in.

Do you now understand the winning way to participate in MPG?

In life, we often encounter situations like this: for example, when you join a lottery or a raffle, you have to rely on probability —you might win a prize, or you might walk away empty-handed simply because luck wasn't on your side.

That is the basic probability logic behind public subscriptions.

#But if the prize is something you purchase outright, and the amount you verify determines exactly how much you can buy, then you are essentially guaranteed to receive it, that is the underwriting logic behind allocation.

#Therefore, participating in the MPG strategic allocation means directly verifying your funds to secure guaranteed allotments.

Just the entry threshold is higher, as we discussed in detail in our session 2 days ago (feel free to revisit it)!

But you also have access to an important financing and lending support program, which serves as the key to crossing that threshold.

It is the very step that allows you to elevate your family's financial standing, a genuine leap in wealth and position.

My dear winning angels,

As 2025 slowly drifts away from us, time, that old traveler, continues its hurried march forward. With fewer than 40 days left on the clock, we are walking together through the final stretch of a year that has been both unforgettable and profoundly meaningful.

Time, much like the MPG subscription progress bar, is climbing toward the very scale of wealth we have dreamed of. And now, with less than 24 hours remaining in this final sprint, we are witnessing the last day of global capital rushing into the public subscription phase.

This moment marks the final step before MPG reveals the posture with which it will enter the market and lock in its listing price. It is a day worth remembering — a day where we turn ambition into achievement, and where we ignite the first fireworks that will illuminate our journey into 2026.

With momentum like this behind us, what dream could possibly remain out of reach?

May this Thanksgiving and Christmas bring not only celebration, but also wealth, love, peace, and a new level of family stature. We are in the process of creating all of this, and we will see it fulfilled!

You are the ace pilot of this subscription mission, and this is the one you' ll never regret. And in those final countdown minutes on Friday, I' ll be waiting for you to witness the outcome together.

Until then!

