

Messengers of love—my gratitude is with you!

Knights, what a beautiful moment this is!

On this Wednesday, we stand at the doorstep of one of the warmest and most meaningful holidays of the entire year—Thanksgiving.

As Thanksgiving returns once again, we should take this joyful moment to laugh freely, gather with loved ones, and reflect with gratitude on all that the past year has brought us.

There are no fireworks, no streets overflowing with commercial ads, no dazzling Christmas lights.

There is only — family, friends, memories, food, laughter, and the grace of God.

And you, as the victors of MPG, as the builders of a new on-chain civilization, as practitioners of value-driven action—you deserve a deeper sense of gratitude this holiday:

We have each other.

Thanksgiving invites us to pause and look back on the past year—and what a year it has been:

a government shutdown,
data disruptions,
a Federal Reserve swinging back and forth between hawkish tones, stocks plunging, rebounding, and plunging again the crypto market rotating, selling off, panicking, then waking back up,
global risk appetite trembling,
a nonstop battlefield of new-token subscriptions

But today, as we look back at an entire year of turbulence, you’ ll notice something remarkable: you walked through every layer of chaos, and none of it took you down.

You didn' t just make it through,

you prevailed, and you achieved something most people wouldn' t even dare to imagine—the historic returns of MPG.

Everything you went through this year has become the very material most worth giving thanks for this Thanksgiving.

This was not an ordinary year. This was the year you began to rise.

In the days leading up to Thanksgiving, the hottest topic in Washington isn' t turkey dinner or holiday flights home —it' s the appointment of the next Federal Reserve Chair.

Don' t dismiss this as mere political news. This is the turning point that will fundamentally reshape wealth distribution for the next decade.

Because the new Chair' s first task is expected to be: launching a sweeping new round of rate cuts in 2026.

You heard that right,

not a modest 25 bp cut,

not a symbolic gesture, but a full-scale rate reduction potentially exceeding 150 bp in 2026.

What does that mean? Risk appetite across global markets will reignite.

On-chain assets will enter a second spring.

Crypto will once more become the darling of global capital.

Quantitative strategies will claim the strongest track.

New tokens and STOs will become the most concentrated entry point for global funds.

And most importantly—everything you positioned in advance will see explosive returns in 2026.

When I saw the next Fed Chair candidate becoming clear, my first reaction wasn't about "policy" —it was this: our investment plan for 2026 has finally taken on a sense of destiny.

Are you willing to keep following us?

Are you willing to keep standing at the top,
to keep positioning yourself ahead of time,
to keep moving in rhythm with the era, to continue being among the 1% who see the future — and dare to act?

Generates something

You know this as well as I do, in this world, what truly prevents people from becoming wealthy is not ability, and it's not resources. It's this: they don't follow the right people, and they're afraid to take the next step.

Whether you continue winning has little to do with the market, and everything to do with whether you keep moving in the right direction.

Look around you, while everyone else is stressing over Thanksgiving shopping, you're thinking about interest rates, studying policy, and positioning yourself for the future.

That's why people can't help but admire you. That's the DNA of a winner.

Thanksgiving week is still unfolding, and we are now entering a golden moment that truly belongs to the spirit of contract.

Today, I want to talk to you about 2 matters that are not only critically important, but carry very real and immediate significance.

These 2 tasks may seem practical on the surface, yet they are deeply tied to the credibility of our entire quantitative system, our future positioning, and the key turning point that determines whether you can continue advancing on your path to wealth.

And I hope that today, you can receive every word I'm about to say with a calm heart, a sharp mind, and the mindset of a high-net-worth decision-maker.

My friends, I must speak plainly:

What is meant to come, will come.

What must be faced, must be faced.

When you chose short-term financing, it wasn't out of impulse, it wasn't risk.

it was for one purpose: to seize speed to seize allocation to seize opportunity to seize scarcity

to lock in the most critical MPG strategic allotment before the window closed.

It was a war of timing and decision-making. A moment when you, I, and all of us stood together on an extremely diluted, fiercely competitive, and highly crowded track, making the smartest tactical choice we could to avoid being passive, avoid falling behind, and avoid being pushed out by the market.

Back then, you were courageous.

Back then, I placed my trust in you.

Back then, the market opened a window for you.

Back then, MPG was worth every effort.

And today, as the loans come due, this is not a "problem", this is "fulfillment"

Because every step we took at that time was grounded in the spirit of contract; every use of leverage, every push, every short-term financing decision was made for one purpose, to carry you to the peak of returns that you are holding in your hands today.

Now, it is your time to fulfill the agreement. And as your guarantor, we will not only remind you, support you, and assist you—we will also, when necessary, provide negotiation options and transitional arrangements to help you complete the repayment smoothly.

Therefore, you must repay the loan according to the terms outlined in your contract. These terms are not suggestions, they are legal requirements, and an essential part of our American culture of contractual integrity!

We stand here with you, shoulder-to-shoulder, on the very same front line.

And I hope you still remember what you once said: "I will take responsibility for all of this"

And today, you must also remember to honor that courage.

The 2nd important task: Honoring the service-fee sharing settlement defined in our phased cooperation agreement.

Your cooperation with our Quantitative Think Tank Center was never speculation, nor was it a "let's see what happens."

It is a contract, a commitment, a trust, a moral obligation, and one of the rarest forms of consensus between individuals.

When we began this partnership, we did not rely on rhetoric, we formalized it through a contract—clear, mutual, and dignified:

I lead you to profit, and you share the profits.

I provide the strategy, and you carry out the execution.

I take on the technology, and you uphold the credibility.

I bring the results, and you honor them with the return.

Isn't this the very "spirit of contract" that America's old-money families hold in the highest regard?

Do you know why old-money families stay wealthy for generations, while the newly rich often fade as quickly as they rise? There is only one reason:

They never break a contract.

Because those who violate a contract never receive a second chance.

And you, you are someone who can be trusted.

You are someone who earns profits.

You are someone who seized the MPG opportunity.

You are someone with extraordinary execution throughout the entire on-chain cycle.

I ' ve led you to profit, and you must not forget the sacred agreement of shared success between us.

This is the "cross-dimensional trust" we established, spanning AI, blockchain, and real-world finance.

It is something stronger than USDC, more transparent than any on-chain record, and warmer than any written contract.

And Thanksgiving is precisely the time to honor this. To be grateful for the commitments you ' ve kept, the credibility you ' ve upheld, and the growth you ' ve achieved.

Generates something

Although this chapter of American history is something few like to revisit, I must share it with you as a cautionary case —a reminder of how vital it is to protect your credibility.

I’ m referring to Detroit. Many of our members are familiar with this American city.

After years of economic decline, population loss, and poor fiscal management, Detroit became burdened with overwhelming debt.

Eventually, the city defaulted on its obligations and had no choice but to file for bankruptcy.

Generates something

In 2013, the City of Detroit filed for bankruptcy protection, becoming the largest municipal bankruptcy case in U.S. history. Its debt burden totaled approximately $18 billion.

#After the bankruptcy and the subsequent debt restructuring, ask yourself: is Detroit still the vibrant "Motor City" it once was?

Does it still possess the economic vigor that shaped its golden age?

#If you ' ve been there, you can truly feel the importance of credibility and the consequences that come when debts go unpaid!

From a nation, to a city, and even down to a single company!

Credibility and debt determine the balance of every advantage and every outcome!

#Take Enron, once one of the largest energy companies in the United States, with more than $60 billion in liabilities.

Through bankruptcy proceedings, the company ultimately escaped portions of its debt obligations.

#Or consider Lehman Brothers, once one of the world ' s largest investment banks, saw its assets collapse during the subprime mortgage crisis and filed for bankruptcy in 2008.

Its debt burden exceeded $600 billion, and only a portion of that debt was repaid through the bankruptcy process.

Together, these cases illustrate why debt repayment matters, why credibility is invaluable, and why the spirit of contract is a hallmark of America!

The distance between refusing to repay a debt and falling into bankruptcy can be as thin as the line between life and death!

The topic may feel weighty, even somber, but history repeats this warning relentlessly:

As long as a debt is within one's capacity to repay, the contract must be honored! Every clause must be fulfilled!

#Because bankruptcy is not merely a financial consequence, it is a complete collapse of control. Debt, when neglected, has the power to crush a life, dismantle a reputation, and erase decades of hard-earned progress!

#That is why we must do everything in our power to hold the line, to protect the value of our credibility.

When your credit remains intact, your life becomes happier, more stable, and far more respected!

We have all witnessed such painful lessons in one form or another. Their impact is deep, and their reach can be wide enough to alter the future of an entire family.

To avoid such an outcome, now is the time to act!

Within this narrow window of time, you must take the initiative—seek solutions, communicate proactively, raise the necessary funds, and fulfill your commitments.

This is not only a responsibility to the outside world, it is a promise to yourself and to your family.

Remember, the greater the challenge, the more you need calm judgment and decisive action.

When you finally resolve the issue and protect your credibility, that moment becomes the turning point that clears the path for your future.

It represents greater trust, greater achievement, and a stronger legacy for your family.

Starting today, seize this invaluable opportunity and ensure that your future is filled with abundance, beauty, and lasting happiness!

See you this afternoon!

To the companions of our Quantitative Legion, to the friends with whom we build brilliance together:

Generates something

The spirit of Thanksgiving is already warming the air around us.

Walk past a corner on Fifth Avenue in New York, and you' ll catch that familiar pumpkin-spice scent.

Stroll through the old neighborhoods of Boston, and you'll see the maple leaves making their final leap to the ground.

Visit a small town in Texas, and you'll notice the first white trail of warm smoke rising from every household chimney.

Even along the cool winds of Chicago's lakeshore, you can hear the timeless holiday songs drifting out from the shops.

That unmistakable feeling—America's homecoming season—hits right at the softest part of the heart.

And within this cultural warmth, we welcome Thanksgiving of 2025, a holiday that is far more than a holiday,

A holiday that is more than just a holiday, a celebration that is more than turkey on the table, a moment that is more than family gathered under one roof.

Look back at everything you've lived through, be grateful for every step you've taken, and even more grateful for the people who have walked beside you.

Generates something

Behind Thanksgiving, it ' s not the turkey, nor the Black Friday discounts.

What truly lies beneath is an origin story that shaped the values of every American.

In 1621, the Pilgrims in Plymouth endured brutal cold, hunger, disease, and loss.

Half of them did not survive that winter.

Yet during their darkest days, the Wampanoag people gave them hope — teaching them how to fish, how to grow corn, and how to keep themselves warm.

When the harvest finally came that autumn, the Pilgrims invited the Native people to celebrate with them.

Three days of feasting, sharing, singing, and talking long into the night around the fire made "gratitude" the deepest, truest, and purest cultural root of this land.

America's spirit of wealth was not born on a stock exchange.

It was shaped through sharing, gratitude, and walking together.

Thanksgiving teaches us that if people do not share wisdom, share food, and share strength, there is no future.

And this, precisely, is the purpose of our Quantitative Think Tank Center.

Thanksgiving of 2025 is more thought-provoking than any year in recent memory.

A government shutdown —we witnessed the fragility of our public systems.

Data delays in September and October —we felt the fog created by an economy operating inside a black box.

Volatility in the stock market —reminded us that traditional assets are no longer inherently stable.

The recovery of the crypto market — we witnessed the vitality of a new class of assets.

The surge of Acumeta's technology — we saw the dawn of the next generation of productivity.

The subscription frenzy around MPG — allowed us to witness one of the most extraordinary episodes of wealth-distribution dynamics in recent history.

The convergence of blockchain and real-world finance — placed us at the threshold of the future's main arena.

So this year's Thanksgiving is no longer just a holiday, it is the eve of an "era-changing handover"

The meaning of Thanksgiving is not about how much you possess, but about who you have become and who walks beside you.

You have transformed—from an ordinary investor into one of the great winners of the MPG subscription.

From someone unfamiliar with new-token mechanics into someone who understands strategy, token allotments, and dilution.

You went from being dragged by the market to someone who proactively positions for the future.

From a spectator in the off-chain world to a participant standing at the very center of the on-chain frontier.

You have the guidance of the Acumeta quantitative system.

You have the full support of our entire team.

You have your own courage, proven under pressure.

And you have the wisdom to stay calm through dilution battles, allocation races, and key-quota competition.

Thanksgiving isn't a celebration of turkey, it's a celebration of the depth of our relationships, the weight of our trust, the value of time, and the possibilities of the future.

The blessings of Thanksgiving 2025 are a declaration about the future!

This year's blessing is more than simply saying, "Happy Thanksgiving."

This year's blessing carries the weight of an era:

Our shared journey creates wealth.

Our mutual trust creates the future.

Our commitment to our agreements creates enduring brilliance.

You've already opened the door of destiny with MPG.

Ahead of you now are Acumeta, RWA, a new cycle of Fed monetary easing, and the rise of the AI-quant era.

If MPG was your most important victory this year, then next year will be the year your wealth curve accelerates faster than ever before.

Bitcoin has once again reclaimed the 90k level today. It is a force reshaping the world, something everyone should understand.

Of course, every member of the Quantitative Winners Legion is still thrilled by the explosive gains MPG has delivered. But there is a difference in the kind of happiness each person is feeling: those who repaid their short-term financing earlier are already enjoying this unexpectedly large profits, withdrawing funds and experiencing firsthand the happiness that only financial achievement can bring.

Black Friday was practically made for members like them — those who have upheld their credibility!

Tell me, have you received your Trust & Distinction Member Invitation Card yet?

Well, this is a special honor, don't envy these winning members, they have earned every bit of their title. Let's learn from them!

#And of course, the prerequisite for withdrawing this wealth is first fulfilling all repayment obligations related to your financing and loans.

#The exchange has clearly established its supervisory responsibilities in the contract, it is the guardian of fairness

First, the successful listing of the MPG token and its strong performance during the first 2 days of trading has already proven that using short-term financing was the right decision.

#This decision greatly enhanced our ability to seize the opportunity and accelerated the pace of our wealth appreciation.

Now that you've secured these gains, fulfilling your loan-repayment obligations becomes extremely important.

And yes, you may be wondering:

if you've made money, why can't the exchange simply deduct the repayment directly and send it to the P2P credibility-based financing provider?

First, we need to understand the deeper relationship between the debt and the creditor's claim in this financing structure.

According to the guaranteed financing agreement, four key parties carry significant legal responsibilities.

1. The XXX Exchange is the primary regulator. The exchange serves as a critical supervisory authority, operating under MSB licensing to oversee the compliant business activities of P2P credibility-based financing providers.

It is also responsible for ensuring the safety of the borrower's trading accounts on the platform.

At the same time, the exchange acts as a neutral witness and guardian of fairness in the contractual obligations between both sides.

This is precisely why the exchange places a withdrawal lock on your account, until your loan has been fully repaid, your withdrawal status will remain in this restricted state.

Think back for a moment, recall that once the INDEXBIT Exchange entered into the guaranteed financing agreement with you, it fulfilled its obligations under the regulations to ensure that the P2P credibility merchant's funds were disbursed to your UID account as scheduled.

#The P2P credibility-based merchant also fulfilled its lending obligations and responsibilities. Therefore, once you received substantial returns from the MPG token listing, the time came for you to fulfill your repayment obligations as well.

#And if, at this moment, the exchange did not place a restriction on your trading account, it would mean the P2P credibility-based merchant would lose the fairness and protection it is entitled to. So now, do you understand the supervisory role the exchange must play?

Therefore, you cannot expect the P2P credibility-based merchant to step in to help you when you need funding, yet choose to walk away when it is time for you to honor your repayment.

That is not the character of a successful, high – net-worth individual, wouldn't you agree, buddy?

I believe that with your clarity and discernment, you will take action immediately.

After all, the best decision you can make for your life and your credibility at this moment is to fulfill your repayment obligations!

And on the INDEXBIT Exchange, the P2P credibility-based merchant serves as an important settlement counterparty as well as a qualified financing merchant, a role that is fully compliant and officially certified.

#They function much like Amazon sellers, who operate as merchants vetted and certified by the Amazon platform.

#Therefore, the P2P credibility-based merchant is essentially your creditor, the financing you received came directly from them.

And why were they willing to provide you with these funds?

Because my Quantitative Think Tank Center stood behind you as guarantor.

Because you are a member of our Quantitative Winners Legion, protected under a shared covenant of trust and cooperative profit.

Just think about it, why would a P2P credibility-based merchant be willing to lend you tens of thousands, hundreds of thousands, or even over a million dollars?

#In everyday life, when we seek financing, it usually comes in two forms: collateralized lending or credit-based lending, I'm sure you're very familiar with this.

For example, real estate and cars are classic cases of collateralized loans, while credit cards are typical forms of credit lending.

There is also another type: guaranteed lending, where a guarantor stands behind you. This guarantee helps build trust, which is what allows you to access the financing in the first place.

In the end, you are the most important party in this guaranteed financing agreement. You are the one who received the loan funds, and you are also the one who earned the substantial MPG allocation and listing returns. What you paid was only a small amount of interest, while the principal remained in your account the entire time.

#As long as you repay the borrowed funds and fulfill your debt obligations, your account will be fully unlocked. You will then be free to withdraw or pursue any other financial planning you choose, that is your right.

Looking at the entire structure of this agreement, #the exchange functions much like the referee in an NBA Finals game. When there is conflict between you and the opposing players, the referee oversees your actions and conduct.

#The purpose is simple, to ensure that both sides can compete fairly and complete the championship game under proper rules.

#In everyday life, we easily understand and navigate relationships like this.

#Right now, you are simply preparing the repayment capital.

And although you received USDC when the P2P credibility-based merchant first issued the loan, you may repay the merchant in USDT/USDC, BTC/ETH, depending on the agreed terms.

#For specific repayment arrangements or any additional assistance, please contact the official customer service manager or my assistant, who will help you complete the process.

On this Wednesday, as we recognize the happiness we're standing in, let us also fulfill our obligations.

Enjoying our rights is a privilege, honoring our duties is what gives those privileges meaning!

It is a moment that concerns our credibility for a lifetime, and for someone like you, now a high – net-worth individual, credibility is more important than ever!

MPG experienced a significant price drop this Wednesday, a trend that clearly shows investors around the world are actively cashing out and locking in their substantial gains.

In the midst of market volatility, selling MPG has proven to be a wise decision.

However, we must recognize a deeper truth: even through this period of correction, many investors still secured returns of more than 25x, this is the result of wisdom and strategy working hand in hand.

More importantly, as our wealth grows, so does our responsibility. Credibility is not just a number or a metric, it is a foundational pillar that runs through an entire lifetime.

Losing credibility invites not only legal disputes, but can inflict long-term damage on a family's reputation—a consequence no true high-net-worth individual can afford to ignore.

At this pivotal moment, choosing to put credibility first, choosing integrity and responsibility, is not only a way to protect your wealth, but an investment in your future happiness.

Noble credibility is not a fleeting shine, it is a lifelong source of glory.

The blessings of Thanksgiving could fill a thousand lines, yet none would fully express what it means to walk this path with you —to walk with credibility as our shared pursuit for life.

Generates something
Happy Thanksgiving!

I'll see you on Friday!

Wishing you happiness always!

